Maya's role in psych2go is an animator. A cool fact about her would be that she grew up on a dairy farm.

"My vision for psych2go is for our community to grow and for us to continue making educational and fun content."

Rachel Beverly (Writer)

Her education resembles a Surrealist painting more than anything else: oddly stacked and random, leaping from a rural high school to a boarding school in the city, to half a Media Communications degree in one state and finally to a (currently in progress) Creative Writing course in another - in other words, a hodgepodge of people and places that has taught her far more than merely prescribed syllabi. As an author, She's here to be a voice of experience in certain treacherous areas; her role is to provide a handhold on the canyon wall for anyone trying to climb out of a mental pit with which I am familiar enough to help.

"Mental health is both murky and familiar territory for me; dynamic and individual, its terrain is unpredictable and strange at the best of times and terrifying at others. Over a lifetime of do-or-die navigation lessons, I've acquired some knowledge of its nuances and pitfalls; my intention here is to offer this knowledge to other lost people, in the hopes that it might help them get to where they'd like to go."

Khalid Straker (Animator)

Khalid Straker is an Animation Artist from New York City. He is also a Video Editor, Motion Graphics Artist, and Creative Writer.

"I want Psych2Go to continue to grow as an easily accessible and reliable source of psychological knowledge. "

"My vision for psych2go is to get information out to the world that will be able to help out a person psychically, mentally and emotionally."

Cody Pickrodt (Voice-Over Narrator)

Cody is currently pursuing a degree in I/O Psychology. He is a voice-over narrator for Psych2Go.

"Applying my speaking skills to contribute to a better understanding of psychology, promulgate the importance of mental health and erase the stigma of mental disease and disorders."

Elaine C (Voice-Over Narrator)

Elaine had many miscellaneous incarnations: Teacher, ASPCA Advocate, Voice Artist, Women's Life Coach, Wannabe Mermaid. She is a Voice-over narrator for Psych2Go.

"My vision of psycho2go is to continue to learn, grow and communicate with others about the importance of understanding and thriving within all the permutations of emotional and psychological diversity within ourselves and others. We as humans are emotional beings and riding the tide that ties us together is so much easier when we empathize and realize while we might be on different waves, we're all still in the same boat. "

Lauren Hopes (Voice-Over Narrator)

Lauren has a first class BA honours degree in English and Creative Writing. She is currently writing her first novel. She is a voice-over narrator for Psych2Go.
